

Southeast Asian Transformations: New Researcher Perspectives

This panel invites postgraduate researchers to present their work-in-progress or preliminary findings in a supportive environment. It will consider proposals to offer a synopsis of a literature review or research plan and methodology, as well as ‘fresh-from-the-field’ reports on findings and results. It is open to postgraduates across disciplines who want to learn how their research complements and/or contrasts with the approaches taken by their peers also working on Southeast Asian issues. Our discussions will consider issues of audience, positionality and targeting of messages for public engagement.

Convenors:

Dan Whitehouse, Durham University – Daniel.r.whitehouse@durham.ac.uk

Dr Deirdre McKay, Keele University